Elects Three New Men to Fill Quota

Henry Bacon, Charles Dana Gibson and Joseph Pennell Supply Vacancies.

American art prevailed over American letters yesterday in the election of new members to the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the result of which was announced last night. Henry Bacon, architect, and Charles Dana Gibson, artist, of New York city, and Joseph Pennell, etcher, of Philadelphis, were chosen in a mail ballot in which every one of the forty-seven members of the Academy participated. The membership of the Academy is now fifty, the maximum number. The new members succeed John Burroughs, who died March 29, 1921; Abbot H. Thayer, who died May 29, 1921, and Barrett Wendell, who died February 8, 1921.

A leading event of the Academy's programme yesterday was a national tribute to John Burroughs. Following the isurroughs memorial there was a housewarming and informal reception at the academy's present home. 15 West Eighty-first street, which was attended by more than 1,000 persons, including diplomatists, authors, artists and others more than 1,000 persons, including plomatists, authors, artists and others ominent in the social and political life the world. Prominent among the plomatists was Ambassador J. J. Justand of France, who was accompanied Mme. Jusserand. There was a distinctly Rooseveltian

by Mme, Jusserand.

There was a distinctly Rooseveltian flavor about the Burroughs memorial. The paper of Prof. Bliss Perry of Harvard, read by Augustus Thomas in the absence of Prof. Perry, who is ill in Cambridge, threw new light upon the relations between the great naturalist and the former President. Hamlin Garland, novelist and playwright, told of the intimacy between Burroughs and Roosevelt.

revious to the Burroughs memorial meeting the members of the Academy were entertained at luncheon. Those who attended were James Ford Rhodes. Robert Underwood Johnson, William Crary Brownell, Edwin H. Blashfield. Thomas Hastings. Brander Mathews. George Whitefield Chadwick, William Rutherford Mead, Nicholas Murray Butler, Owen Wister, Booth Tarkington, David Jayne Hill, Childe Hassam, Augustus Thomas, Gari Melchers, Hawlin Garland, Maurice Francis Egan, Judge Robert Grant, Willam Roscoe Thayer. Cass Gilbert and Herbert Adams.

A collection of Burroughs memorabilia was on exhibition yesterday at the Academy as a part of an elaborate display of manuscripts and paintings by leading American authors and artists living and dead. Among those who contributed to the exhibit were Mrs. Theoney members of the Academy will.
